Three men arrested June 14th in Elba remain in Coffee County Jail on drug trafficking charges

by Linda Hodge, Editor

Three men – one from Elba, Ala., one from Enterprise, Ala. and one from Daleville, Ala. – each remained in the Coffee County Jail this week [as of press time] on charges of drug trafficking stemming from an arrest made Sunday, June 14, in Elba.

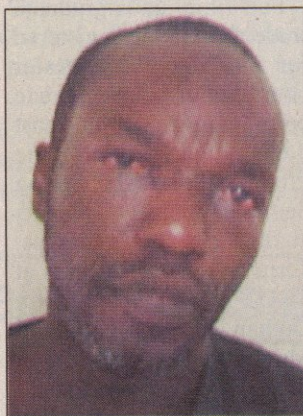

On Sunday, June 14, at approximately 2:20 p.m., Officer Chase Rogers with the Elba Police Department conducted a traffic stop on a white Buick LeSabre on Plant Avenue in Elba. According to Elba Police Lt. Russ Young, the vehicle was occupied by three males.

Young said Officer Rogers initiated the traffic stop for a speeding violation; however, before the vehicle stopped Rogers witnessed objects being thrown from the suspect vehicle. The subsequent investigation revealed the objects thrown from the suspect vehicle to be two bags of what appeared to be methamphetamine.

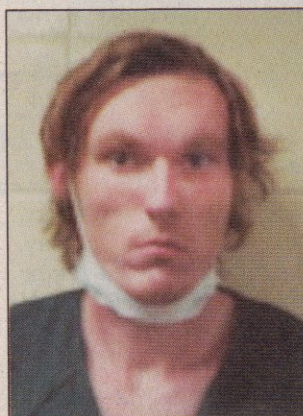

Lt. Young said Rogers located a third bag of the [methamphetamine] substance in the pants pocket of the driver of the vehicle – identified as Kenya Adkins, age 45, of Elba.

Lt. Young said preliminary weight of the suspected narcotics was 101 grams. These narcotics were sent to be at the state laboratory for verification of methamphetamine and to be weighed there.

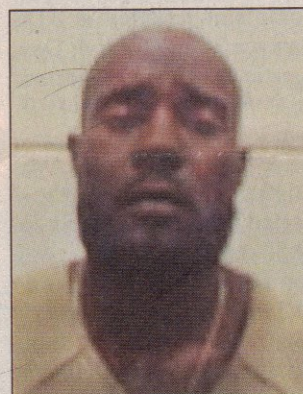

Due to the weight of the suspected narcotics, all three men were charged with drug trafficking and each currently has a $150,000 bond set on that

Lentz said the county had been approved for a project grant from the Alabama Scrap Tire Fund that would use a rubber modified mix for paving, including scrap rubber from used tires.

The grant amount awarded to Coffee County was $288,000.

On Monday, commissioners approved a request from Lentz for the chairman to enter into agreement with the National Center of Asphalt Technology (NCAT) at Auburn University for testing and evaluations of the project. He said NCAT would be testing and evaluating the performance of the rubberized asphalt in comparison to traditional asphalt.

Commissioners voted unanimously to enter this agreement with NCAT.

Coffee County Habitat for Humanity board chairperson Charlene Goolsby is shown addressing the crowd prior to the groundbreaking of the first of two new homes to be built in Elba. Tawana L. Thomas and her children will be the recipients of the home at 538 Adkinson Street while Catina Washington and her children will soon have a home at 529 Adkinson Street in Elba thanks to Coffee County Habitat for Humanity.

Coffee County's Habitat for Humanity breaks ground for construction of two new homes in Elba on Adkinson Street

Coffee County Habitat for Community broke ground Wednesday evening, June 17, on not one but two new sites for homes to be constructed in Elba – giving two families a dream come true for homeownership.

At 6 p.m. last Wednesday, a groundbreaking ceremony was held at 538 Adkinson Street, Elba, for a Habitat home to be built for Tawana L. Thomas and her children Kentana and Kendre.

The construction of this home is being done in loving memory of Mr. Paul Morrow. Paul and his siblings donated the family home located at 786 Claxton Avenue, Elba, to Coffee County Habitat for Humanity, and that home was sold with proceeds to benefit a Habitat family.

Last Wednesday, it was announced the Thomas family would be that recipient.

Paul Morrow was a long-time support of Habitat for Humanity and served on the Coffee County board for seven years.

"His good works and many friendships will last forever in this home," Coffee County Habitat for Humanity board chairperson Charlene Goolsby said.

Some 15 minutes after the Thomas home groundbreaking, the ceremony moved to 529 Adkinson Street where a second groundbreaking for a Habitat home was conducted. For this soon-to-be-constructed home, it was announced that Catina Washington and her children – Alvin, McKenzie, Ayden, and Madalynn – would be the recipients.

As with any Habitat for Humanity home constructed, both families of these two new homes in Elba will be required to put in a certain number of hours of labor along with volunteers in building the homes. Habitat says it gives the new homeowners an even larger sense of ownership for their forever home.

Habitat's homebuyers invest hundreds of hours of their own labor, called sweat equity, working alongside volunteers and other Habitat homeowners, in addition to paying an affordable mortgage and receiving financial education. Habitat for Humanity follows a nondiscriminatory policy of family selection. Neither race nor religion is a factor in choosing Habitat's homeowners.

Goolsby said Habitat International has not given approval for volunteers to be on work sites yet due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. Therefore, she said a date is still pending on when volunteers can get to work on these two homes in Elba, but she said Habitat is trying to have the foundations completed to be ready for volunteers when they are given the go-ahead to start work.

During his report to the board, superintendent Chris Moseley said school systems across Alabama continue to wait to hear from state superintendent Dr. Eric Mackey on his plan to reopen Alabama schools amid the COVID-19 pandemic. A lot of local decisions are pending on what the state superintendent announces, according to Moseley.

Moseley had some personnel matters to present to the board for its approval. The first was a resignation from Katie Harrison, high school special education teacher.

Moseley said Harrison had accepted a job with another school system. Board members voted unanimously to accept this resignation.

Three new hires were approved for the school system. All were approved by unanimous vote.

"Loyalty to the President is great, but loyalty to truth, integrity, and country is even better." – Charles Krauthammer

Our e-mail 'mailbox' gets a workout every day! Occasionally there is something worth noting. As much as is in our in-box, Troy Cable has a system that sorts out a lot of the Spam stuff into a separate folder. Once in a while there is something in it that we pull back and review but mostly it is truly junk. In recent weeks we have been getting an increasing number of spam e-mails (we assume they are spam) with a tag line in foreign languages . . . a few in Chinese or Japanese writing and others in German, Russian, etc. We remember enough of the German language that we want those to keep going to the spam folder . . . and assume the others are on the same subjects. Then on Monday morning there was one from Russia - no less - in English and wanting to discuss an antivirus upgrade for my computer!! Russians/Antivirus on an American's computer - a laugh! We wonder aloud just why those in foreign countries think we don't get enough junk without them adding theirs to the pot.

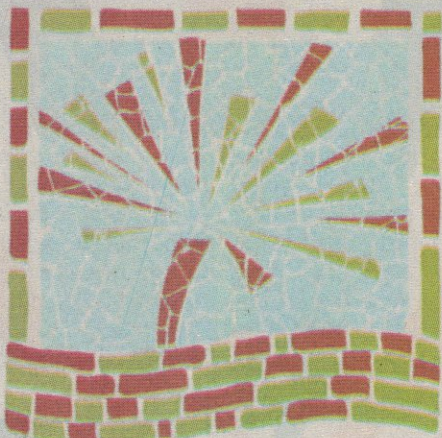

The much-delayed annual Elba car show is set to go and this time it promises to be even larger than usual. Mark July 11th on your calendar and meet your friends on the court-house square. Precautions are being made for 'social distancing', etc.

Tear gas probably has been overused by law enforcement in controlling mobs, but we think it should still be part of their control tactics. We know firsthand the human reaction to this gas. During our early military training all those years ago, it was routine to put us in a room wearing a gas mask, filling the room with tear gas while we removed the mask and loudly recited our name, rank and serial number. Sure, it burned our eyes and our throat (if we gasped for air) but it was not lethal, nor as physically harmful as a gun could be. And we got over the discomfort by flushing our eyes with water . . . or just letting nature wash out the discomfort with our own tears. OH, and we will carefully avoid being part of any mob scene like it was the plague - or tear gas.

The trainer for Tiz the Law, the racehorse that won the Belmont Stakes Saturday afternoon, is 82 years old. Another reminder not to sell us members of the older generation short, 'we ain't quit thinking yet!'

Well the Navy did investigate the very unprofessional removal of Captain Brett Crozier as commanding officer of the aircraft carrier USS Theodore Roosevelt. Of course they rallied and did the traditional thing . . . threw Crozier and his immediate superior under the bus to protect their own hides. They actually officially claimed he failed to take action when sailors on his ship started getting the coronavirus! This is the guy that was fired after he asked for help in stopping the spread of the bug. One rumor was they thought President Trump 'might have' wanted him fired! Now that is definitely a bunch of desk-manning career naval officers protecting their own secure positions! Our take on this matter is they should give command back to Crozier, promote him and all that accompanied by a plaque saluting him for standing up for the safety of the troops placed under his command.

Looks like we may have us a set of twins to show just how you eat mother's sweet snack off the kitchen floor! They are Olivia, left, and Ensley, right. The girls are the daughters of Christina (Bryant) and Brad Meissner of Enterprise. Christina is an Elba native, graduate of Elba High School and former Miss Elba. The twins have a big brother to help them find other things to experiment with in addition to mother's midafternoon snack from the ice cream shop.

Editor's Note: Cuzin Lou Lou's column is meant for entertaining purposes only as she shares her stories.

Cuzin Lou Lou and Sister had this big plan to take Papa to a new restaurant for Father's Day. They, of course, were going to practice all necessary COVID-19 social distancing protocols. After all, Papa is no spring chicken anymore and he must be looked after to be sure all is good.

Especially after one of his recent escapades! Papa announced one Sunday afternoon during the stay-at-home time that he was going to take a "ride out in the country, just to get out of the house for a bit."

Well...two-three hours later, a concerned Lou Lou makes a call to Papa's mobile phone making sure he was okay and nothing horrible had happened since she and Sister had not heard anything out of him since he left for that short ride.

His answer... "Oh, I've just been out checking on some of our elderly church members."

"What in the name of Yonder?!?!?"

Lou Lou could not believe the words that had just transmitted over the telephone.

"Papa! You do realize you are not supposed to be doing that don't you?" Lou Lou was beside herself. "We are under stay-at-home orders which means not visiting folks, even your church members! And, besides! You are the ELDERLY!!!!"

Lou Lou knows Papa takes his role as a deacon very seriously and strives to serve the best he possibly can, but that was simply a no-no!

Time has passed since that interesting afternoon, and Lou Lou has been proud of Papa as he has now realized the seriousness of the COVID virus. He is doing much better at following safety guidelines - wearing a mask and social distancing. He has even discouraged some others from holding gatherings he felt could be put on hold for a while for the safety of others.

So, when Papa said he preferred to stay home for a relaxing day in his recliner on Father's Day, Lou Lou and Sister scraped the restaurant idea [for now] and chose to cook for Papa instead. He seemed to really enjoy himself too as he chomped down on fresh roasted potatoes, stewed squash, sweet corn on the cob, and fried chicken. The homemade vanilla Blue Bell ice cream [Papa's favorite] was just the treat to send him into paradise.

Although, there was a bit of an uncomfortable moment during lunch when Sister announced that she just did not care so much for stewed squash any longer.

"What is this craziness you speak of?" Lou Lou asked.

Sister said she could still eat it, but it just was not her favorite. She said she much prefers fried squash to any other way the veggie is cooked.

Sister already had put the "squash" on cooking a squash casserole because she doesn't like it, so, Lou Lou decided it was time to put a foot down on this new revelation. She let Sister know that she had agreed to not cook squash casserole, but she would not stop making stewed squash - it is just too yummy to not enjoy! Papa seconded that! Sister just shook her head at them both. She said there was no need to be over dramatic about it. She was just saying it was not her favorite way to eat squash...that she would still eat it in small quantities.

So, in the end, the troubled waters were avoided, and Lou Lou and Sister agreed there still would be stewed squash enjoyed as long as there was fried squash all along too! Either way, Papa was happy. He says he doesn't care how it's cooked as long as no one forgets to call him with it's time to eat! That boy does love his food!

Papa said it was a good Father's Day this year. He had good food, his girls nearby, and he enjoyed kicking back in his recliner and snoozing a bit.

"We'll get to that restaurant some other time," he said.

And, the Lord willing, we certainly will.

Until next time...God bless and keep smiling!

Troy University's School of Nursing receives grant to increase number of nursing faculty in Alabama

Troy University's School of Nursing has been awarded a grant aimed at increasing the number of qualified nursing faculty in Alabama.

The Nurse Faculty Loan Program grant, totaling $89,319, is awarded by the Health Resources and Services Administration of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. As a partner in this project, Troy University will provide 10 percent of the total funding. Dr. Carrie Lee Gardner, Associate Professor in the TROY School of Nursing, is the project's director.

The grant program provides funding to accredited schools of nursing to offer loans to students enrolled in advanced education nursing degree programs who are committed to become nurse faculty. In exchange for full-time, post-graduation employment as nurse faculty, the program authorizes the cancellation of up to 85 percent of any such loan.

"This is a big accomplishment for the School of Nursing," said Dr. Wade Forehand, Director of TROY's School of Nursing. "Receiving this grant will be instrumental in attracting Doctor of Nursing Practice students to our program and developing nursing educators. I am grateful to Dr. Carrie Lee Gardner, the principal investigator for this grant, who was instrumental in putting the grant together and pursuing this activity."

The American Association of Colleges of Nursing (AACN) reported that 75,029 qualified applicants were not offered admission to baccalaureate and graduate nursing programs in 2018, and the insufficient numbers of faculty played a significant role in those numbers.

"Many nursing schools are unable to admit qualified applicants in large part due to insufficient numbers of faculty," Dr. Gardner said. "The majority of job vacancies in nursing schools were for positions that required or preferred a doctoral degree. The aim of this funding opportunity is to increase the number of qualified nursing faculty."

Dr. Gardner said that over the last five years, the percentage of Doctor of Nursing Practice graduates at TROY who seek positions in nursing education has ranged from 16 to 35 percent. Since its inception in 2009, TROY's DNP program has experienced success in placing graduate nursing faculty positions throughout the Southeast. Since 2015, the DNP program has graduated students residing in Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Mississippi.

"The DNP degree prepares nurses to practice at the highest level of clinical practice. While the majority of graduates work professionally in clinical practice settings such as primary care offices, and health facilities, the degree also prepares students to teach nursing in colleges and universities," Gardner said.

Funding for students will be available beginning in the 2020 Fall Semester. Those interested in applying should contact Dr. Gardner at csgardner@troy.edu.

What to Do with Family Plots when Families Change

Sometimes individuals will find their relatives have purchased comprehensive family burial plots for children and other loved ones to use. However, many find it is uncommon for families to "stay together" geographically in a way to practically use these burial plots. In addition, children—and grandchildren—of the original deed holder will often wish to be buried with their spouse or pursue another form of burial. Is it Disrespectful to Not Use a Family Burial Plot?

Many will question whether it is disrespectful to plan to be buried in another cemetery than what one's predecessors purchased. However, it is important to remember that every individual has a right to carry out his or her funeral and burial as chosen. Having these discussions before the plot owner or deed holder has passed can be a great way to mitigate any future confusion—and possibly sell any unneeded plots.

Memorializing a Family Plot with a Marker

Although an individual may wish to place his or her remains somewhere other than a family plot, there are some ways to memorialize the concept of the family without having to pursue burial. For example, if the deceased wishes to be buried next to a spouse in a different location, the surviving relatives can opt to place an additional marker on the original family plot. Although an individual is not buried there, this is a great way to respect the wishes of parents, grandparents and other ancestors without having to compromise the personal desires of the deceased.

CHURCH NEWS

Pastor's Corner

by Dwight Johnson, Lead Pastor
ELBA FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD

As I write, it is Father's Day, June 21. This morning at church, we gave all of the dads an unusual Father's Day gift – a small clamp.

Yes, it was a practical, useful gift. But, it was also a sermon illustration. My primary text was Romans 12:9, where Paul admonishes "Don't just pretend to love others. Hate what is wrong. Hold tightly to what is good." (NLT) I then listed some things that we should "hold tightly" to, some things that can slip away, or be pulled away, if we are not diligent.

One of the points was "We must hold tightly to our families." The scripture reference was Hebrews 11:7 – "It was by faith that Noah built a large boat to save his family from the flood. He obeyed God, who warned him about things that had never happened before." Notice:

Things were about to happen that had never happened before. No one had seen a flood of that magnitude. It is even possible that no one had ever seen it rain, as Genesis 2:5,6 records that "God had not yet sent rain to water the earth... Instead, springs came up from the ground and watered all the land." We, too, are seeing things never witnessed before. Times are changing. Things are uncertain. What will we do? How can we "hold tightly" to our family in perilous times?

Noah, to save his family, began a monumental building project. As a wannabe (or wish I were) carpenter, I'm in awe of Noah's craftsmanship. He did something never done before (built the ark) because he faced something never experienced before. With crude tools and a basic description, he set out to do the impossible. After a long period of time and great tenacity, he finished this ark of safety. All because he loved his family, and was determined to hold them tightly.

Even before our present storms came, it was a tough season for families. Now that the floods have begun, our loved ones are in great danger of being swept away by fear, hopelessness, depression, and more. What are we doing about it? Build an ark – a place of safety – for them. Do whatever it takes to hold them tightly. They are certainly worth whatever effort is necessary.

Social distancing is required during the services, and face masks are encouraged to be worn for safety precautions.

Elba's District One community will have a Prayer Walk on Saturday, June 27, at 10 a.m.

All participants are asked to gather at 9:30 a.m. at the Masonic Lodge, 1503 Martin Luther King Drive, Elba.

Basin Baptist Church to begin "Drive In Worship" services on Sunday, June 28th

Basin Baptist Church looks to begin transitioning this Sunday, June 28, back to worshipping on the church grounds for its Sunday morning service.

"Hopefully we have weathered the storm of isolation long enough that our goal of getting back into worship in our church by July can take place," said Pastor Dr. Sam Self.

This upcoming Sunday, June 28, Basin Baptist Church will conduct a Drive-In Worship as the church family and guests will meet in the grass parking lot at 9:30 a.m. to observe the Lord's Supper and worship.

"We have the equipment so all can stay in their cars/trucks to maintain social distancing," Self said. "Our deacon body will pass out individual packs of bread and juice so everyone can feel safe in taking the Lord's Supper."

Upon arrival Sunday morning, all will be given the proper FM frequency number to 'tune-in' with their vehicle radio so the service can be heard clearly via the radio.

"I hope you will make every effort to be at Basin Baptist Church at 9:30 this Sunday morning to begin Taking back from satan what he has taken away from us over the past few months," Self said. "I look forward to seeing you as we gather to demonstrate our faith! Glory to our Lord!"

Basin Baptist Church is located at 9757 Alabama Highway 189 S, Elba.

** Good Advice

"Dear Abby" once advised a woman not to have the local newspaper correct the obituary of her recently deceased mother. The obituary had incorrectly added nine years to the mother's age. Abby's response was, "Let it alone."

Abby then quoted a series of small-town newspaper ads that continued to compound an error printed in the first ad. A man was selling a sewing machine. Buyers were instructed to call after 7 p.m. and "ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him cheap." The following day the editor published a correction: "ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him after 7 p.m." On the third day came another correction: "ask for Mrs. Kelly who loves with him."

Finally, the seller of the sewing machine placed an ad saying that he no longer had a sewing machine for sale. He had smashed it and disconnected his phone! He added, "I have not been carrying on with Mrs. Kelly. Until yesterday she was my housekeeper, but she quit." The members of the Sanhedrin were somewhat like that poor editor. The more they tried to address their concerns about the apostles, the more their frustration grew. Gamaliel reminded them of some recent history and then gave some good advice: if God is not in this movement don't worry about it; but be careful – lest you find yourselves fighting against God. – C.R.B.

LIFESTYLES

Barbara Scarbrough celebrates her 80th birthday in style!

Though coronavirus hindered the original party plan, Barbara Scarbrough's friends and family rallied to give her a socially distant, surprise drive-by parade last week in honor of her 80th birthday! Parade participants secretly gathered in town [Elba] to decorate their cars with signs, banners, and balloons before driving to her home, with horns honking and birthday wishes being yelled all the way. Those that were not able to be a part of the celebration in person sent cards, letters, and video messages wishing Barbara a happy birthday and hopes for another great year. Barbara was successfully surprised and thanked everyone for coming. When asked what she thought, she said she had never seen anything like it in her eighty years! Barbara graduated from Florala High School in 1958, where she was a cheerleader and named Miss Florala. She married Philip that same year and they moved to Auburn while he attended Auburn University. They then settled in Elba where they raised their two children. These days Barbara can be found working in her yard, worshipping at First Baptist Church Elba, or spending time with her friends and family. Her daughter and son-in-law, Melanie and Will Martin, and her granddaughters and their husbands, Amanda and Keith Dickey and Ashley and Mitch Brumbeloe all joined in the celebration.

Zion Chapel Alumni Association selling historical book

The Zion Chapel Alumni Association is selling a historical book containing information shared by alumni, as well as others affiliated with the school, including teachers. This is being done as a fundraiser for the scholarship program and other necessities to benefit the school and the students at Zion Chapel.

The book contains many informative stories, topics, discussions and memories shared from a time so different than that of today. The many tales shared will bring back great memories and information to make readers reminisce about great times shared that will be new to many and appreciated by all.

Information was compiled to highlight efforts made by many to accomplish the accreditation of Zion Chapel, the building of the different programs including football, women's sports, band, and other programs. There also is a special section recognizing the state runner up of the 1974 football team, as well as other interesting information shared by many.

The book focuses on the beginning of the school and what follows, including how different school was at that time compared to today. The primary years include the late 40's, the 50's, 60's, and some 70's [and could have pictures of alumni that are or were the grandparents or great grandparents of past and present alumni or others in the community or in other areas]. A last minute addition is a special recognition page for the 2020 class with pictures because of the most unusual year they and other seniors endured because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

There is some community history shared in pictures and stories. Different people including students, teachers, administrators and others have shared highlights and stories they remember and people that made a difference in their lives, whether it was a friend or a teacher. There are many special people highlighted in this book, including teachers. So much is remembered and shared in great stories about many.

The book is 393 pages, and it covers a lot of information. There are many yearbook pictures including the very first yearbook put together before the high school was established along with the first several yearbooks. Included are highlights and pictures of the seniors of those years as many do not have those yearbooks presently.

All profits from the sale of this book will go to the Zion Chapel Alumni Association. Make checks payable to the Association in the amount of $30. The mailing address P O Box 56, Jack, AL 36346. The association also has a Paypal account. The link is zcalumni@gmail.com. If it is desired the book be mailed include $5 extra for the postage, along with the mailing address to send the book. Arrangements can also be worked out for books to be picked up. For questions or other information, send an email to zcalumni@gmail.com.

June 30th is last day to complete enrollment for 2020 ARC or PLC

Agricultural producers who have not yet enrolled in the Agriculture Risk Coverage (ARC) or Price Loss Coverage (PLC) programs for 2020 must do so by June 30. Although program elections for the 2020 crop year remain the same as elections made for 2019, all producers need to contact their local USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) office to sign a 2020 enrollment contract.

"The Agriculture Risk Coverage and Price Loss Coverage programs are critical safety-net programs for farmers, helping producers weather market distortions resulting from natural disasters, trade disruptions and, this year, a pandemic," said FSA Administrator Richard Fordey.

Producers who do not complete enrollment by close of business local time on Tuesday, June 30 will not be enrolled in ARC or PLC for the 2020 crop year and will be ineligible to receive a payment should one trigger for an eligible crop.

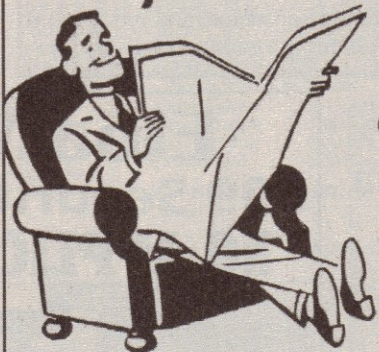

ARC and PLC contracts can be mailed or emailed to producers for signature depending on producer preference. Signed contracts can be mailed or emailed back to FSA or, arrangements can be made in advance with FSA to drop off signed contracts at the FSA county office – call ahead for local drop off and other options available for submitting signed contracts electronically.

Lawson went with his Mom and Aunt Mel Mel to the beach again last week and after coming home said he had the best time ever. Our grandson loves the water, no matter if it is at the beach or at a pool, and since it gets him away from his game system and gets him outdoors, I am all for it!

I talked with Elba Tiger head coach Marc Sieving over the weekend and continued to be impressed with his work ethic and his philosophy concerning football and the goals he and his players have with ten weeks left before the start of the season. Coach Sieving understands what all high school programs are going through, makes no excuses for hardships created by the virus and talks about taking it one step at a time. I know the team may be behind the eight ball a little since it is having to learn a new offense and defense without the benefit of spring training, but don't look for anyone at Tigertown to make any excuses and don't look for the Tigers to not be ready to go when they kick it off in mid-August. Coach Sieving has a plan and I believe he is just the man to make sure it is followed and that his team will be ready to go.

Sieving feels Tigers are ahead of schedule

The Elba Tigers wrapped up their third week of summer football workouts last week and new Tiger head coach Marc Sieving stated it has been a good three weeks for everyone involved in the program.

"My goal at the start of summer workouts was to work on conditioning and to begin to put in the basic offense and defense," said Sieving, "and after three weeks we are farther along than I had hoped. I feel good about the numbers we have at workouts, the players are getting in shape more every day and we all feel good about where we are on offense and defense. All the players are really working hard both in the weight room and on the practice field, the weather has cooperated and I believe we as coaches and all the players look forward to coming to practice every day and are committed to improve."

"I am a little disappointed in the number of younger players that have been coming to workouts," added Sieving, "but I didn't get the chance to meet with them before school closed and didn't get the chance to sell them on our program. The ones that are coming are working three days a week and are working hard, but the numbers just aren't what we need. Hopefully others will hear about what we are doing and make the decision to join us and become an Elba Tiger."

"Back when we got started I had a plan for the month of June and said after that we would work on a plan for July," added Sieving. "Well, this is the last week of June workouts and we will be off the week of the fourth. So, it is time to

*** While there are always coaching changes in the high school ranks, the coaching carousel for the teams in Class 2A, Region 2 has been going in circles for quite a while and is still turning even as the upcoming season nears. The most recent opening came last week when highly-successful Abbeville head coach Robin Tyra left to assume the head job at Ashford. Elba (Marc Sieving), Houston County (Chip Harris) and Cottonwood (Dustin Harrison) will all have new head coaches when the season swings into action in August, and Abbeville has to make a move quickly since summer workouts have already begun. The region coaches back for another season include Randy Bryant, in his fourth year at Zion Chapel; Jim Bob Striplin, in his fifth year at Geneva County; Scott Horne, in his thirteenth year at G.W. Long; and, Steven Kilcrease, in his sixth year at Arlton. Yep, the season gets more and more interesting as the clock winds down.

*** Paul Finebaum drew the ire of many University of Alabama fans recently when he stated in a radio interview that time was 'running out' for Tide Coach Nick Saban to lead Alabama to another national championship. The popular and controversial radio sports personality responded to the complaints that due to Saban's age (69 in October) the clock was ticking on how long he would still be coaching. While it is true Saban's age will no doubt have an impact on the number of years he has left in his career at Alabama, Finebaum was probably just trying to create emotions from his listeners and add to his numbers. Hey, Finebaum isn't getting any younger, either.

head man. "The players have picked up on the offense well so far and the defense is about sixty-percent installed. That doesn't mean we are ready to play, but we are taking steps in that direction. We will work on putting in the base plays on offense and the base calls on defense, and work to perfect that every day. Our offensive playbook may not be real thick at the present time, but we want to make sure we have the basics down pat. It is all about repetition and working to make sure what we do we will do well. We aren't going to throw a lot at the players at one time and get them confused. We are going to work hard at what we do and learn to do it well."

"There are still a lot of unknowns about the school year and what can happen due to the virus," said Sieving, "but we can't control that. So, our job is to get in shape, stay healthy and get ready to play football come August 21. I feel good about where we are and where we are headed and am excited every day when I head to the school for practice."

*** Former Arkansas head football coach Bret Bielema has filed a $7.025 million lawsuit against the Arkansas Razorback Foundation claiming he is owed that amount in a settlement after his termination as the head coach. The foundation stopped making the $320,000 per month payment in December, 2018, after the coach was hired as an assistant coach with the New England Patriots. The foundation declared the new coaching position was comparable in stature to the head coaching job at Arkansas, and therefore was no longer obligated to make the payments. The settlement agreed upon stated Bielema would receive a total of $11.935 million to be paid through 2020 in monthly installments. It is common for a coach to seek employment in the profession after being fired, and Bielema argues that the salary with the Patriots and the assistant coaching position are not equal to that of his former position at Arkansas. I'd guess an out of court settlement will be reached before this thing goes back to court.

*** A survey conducted by Referee magazine discovered that nearly one-third of high school and youth sports officials do not feel comfortable about returning to the field during the pandemic. Older officials are not eager to out themselves in harm's way, and since football has been labeled a 'close contact sport,' the fear of contracting the disease would greatly multiply. A football is handled by a minimum of four people on every play, and while the wearing of gloves would help matters, it would be kind of hard to blow a whistle while wearing a facemask. The officials can arrive already dressed in their uniforms to keep them out of locker rooms and most of the time can keep outside the six-foot social distancing circle, but there is really no easy answer in a time that more and more qualified and experienced officials are already getting out of the profession.

*** The Enterprise Department of Parks and Recreation opened its baseball and softball seasons last week and have stated the season would last five or six weeks. Recreation officials admitted that numbers were down in both leagues, especially in softball, where only 20-25 percent of the youth eligible to play are taking part, which resulted in the sport being played only one night per week. I congratulate the folks in Enterprise for going ahead with the season and know they will take every precaution to keep everyone safe that plays and attends the games. Have fun!

*** Former Elba Tiger head football coach Pate Harrison resurfaced last week as the new head coach at Rehobeth. Harrison had reportedly accepted assistant positions at Cairo, Georgia and Prattville, Alabama in recent months, but obviously never gave up on his goal to be a head coach, and is now the leader of the 5A Rebels, that posted an 8-3 record a year ago. Harrison's return to the Wiregrass coaching ranks will certainly make the coming season a little more interesting.

*** The nominees for the 2021 College Football Hall of Fame were announced last week, and while there were a lot of very deserving former college stars on the list, it also included the names of six people that are familiar to most football fans across the state. Former Auburn linebacker Greg Carr is a longshot to get in the hall, as are former Troy Trojans Al Lucas (DL) and Freddie Thomas (DB), while those that have a pretty good shot are former Alabama standouts Antonio Langham (DB) and Chris Samuels (OL), as well as former Troy coach Larry Blakeney. Just to be nominated is an honor, but to make the hall is a dream of all players and coaches. We here in Elba are proud that we have a former Tiger in the Hall of Fame in Ronald McKinnon, a former college standout at North Alabama and a 10-year NFL linebacker.

Scroggins brothers complete 'redeye' grand slam

By DAVID RAINER
Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources

When the Scroggins brothers accept a challenge, there's no turning back.

The firefighter brothers, Kevin at Hueytown and Steven at Hoover, revert to their roots to decompress from the stressful life as first responders. They find their solace casting flies in the many beautiful streams and creeks that crisscross the state. Steven said he started catching fish in the streams that he regularly visited, but he wasn't sure what he was catching. His research indicated they might be redeye bass. The more research he did, the more he decided to focus on redeyes and the streams and rivers they inhabit. He also discovered that each drainage has a different species of redeye.

"I really started searching out those streams with redeyes," he said. "When my son, Kaden, got old enough to go with me in 2013 or 2014, we started going to these streams. We went to the Warrior River drainage."

"This was before redeye fishing got popular. I remember when Kaden and I caught our first redeyes on a fly. We doubled up, and I remarked at the time that this was the hardest-fighting small fish I've ever seen in my life. They're just so strong. My love for them grew out of that."

The Scroggins brothers discovered Matt Lewis' "Fly Fishing for Redeye Bass: An Adventure Across Southern Waters" book, which further piqued their interest.

Lewis, Drew Morgan and Jonathan Kelly formed the Redeye Fly Fishing Group and created the Redeye Slam. The Scroggins were all in.

To complete the Redeye Slam, anglers must catch each redeye species in the Mobile Basin within a calendar year. The Redeye Grand Slam requires anglers to catch all seven species within a calendar year.

Steven said between 70 and 80 people signed up for the Grand Slam challenge, but only a few people managed to accomplish it. The Scroggins brothers were the third and fourth anglers to achieve the Grand Slam.

"Kevin and I do all these adventures together," Steven said. "The Grand Slam was a very lofty goal. In 2018, when we did it, we traveled about 2,200 miles and went through untold counties and towns we'd never seen. You have to do tons and tons of research. It's about logistics. You kind of know where they live, but you're on your own. We were really tickled when we got it done."

It took the brothers from March to October to catch all seven species. But that left them without a challenge, so they stepped it up a notch.

They decided to try to catch all four Mobile Basin species in one day.

"Nobody had ever done that before," Steven said. "Most people didn't think it was possible, but over the years of fishing for them, we kind of felt like we knew where the different species were. When we were doing the Grand Slam, I had caught two, the Coosa and the Tallapoosa, in one day and decided to try it."

The Scroggins brothers doubled down on their logistics and recently made their "third time's the charm" redeye trip.

"This was all done wading," Steven said. "We're targeting these backcountry streams. It's really the most beautiful parts of Alabama you've ever seen. What we found out is that if you find rhododendrons and mountain laurels, you can find redeye bass. The moniker for redeye bass is the Bama brook trout because they share similar locations as brook trout in the Appalachian Mountains."

"We started in Tallapoosa drainage," Steven said. "Kevin caught a fish at 8:30, but I didn't catch my fish until about 9:15. Second was a drive to the Coosa River drainage. It was an hour's drive and an extremely tough hike to the stream. It took about three-quarters of a mile of fishing for us both to get our fish. That was about 11:30. We looked at each other and said, 'We're going to be able to do this today.'"

Next up was a trip to the upper reaches of the Cahaba River north of Trussville. By 3:15, they both had Cahaba redeyes.

"This is where the story takes a downturn," Steven

Elba's 4th of July event will be fireworks only

Due to the ongoing COVID-19 concerns and need to continue to practice social distancing, Elba Chamber and City of Elba officials chose to limit this year's 4th of July event [Let Freedom Ring] be a fireworks only event this year.

Elba Chamber director Sandy Bynum said the Let Freedom Ring event has been highly attended in the past, and there were continued concerns of being able to keep proper social distancing for the crowd if the event was held as normal. Therefore, knowing the fireworks show is the main attraction of the event, it was decided to host only the fireworks this year.

Bynum said she submitted a plan to the Alabama Department of Public Health and the State Fire Marshal's Office to get approval to still host the fireworks event, and Elba was granted that approval provided that everyone practices proper social distancing. She said the request is that those attending this year's 4th of July fireworks show park and watch from their vehicles.

The fireworks show, presented by Mike Holderfield, will begin promptly at 9 p.m. on the 4th of July. The fireworks will be shot from the same downtown location as in past years, which will allow folks to park practically anywhere they choose in the downtown area and still be able to watch the beautiful display.
